

FRICTION AT KALALAU.

REPORT THAT LARSEN WILL BE RECALLED.

An Eye-Witnesses' Pungent Story of Events Occurring During the Leper Expedition.

There was a very general rumor about the city yesterday, and especially in military circles, that there has been more or less conflict of authority between the military and police forces on the Kalalau expedition; also that the former have been thrust to the front on every occasion, while the latter have been conspicuous by active duties in the rear. These rumors are given for what they are worth, but it is known that the Government has received reports from the seat of war showing that all is not as harmonious as it should be between those in command, and that it has taken prompt means to remedy the evil. The STAR would not be surprised if the dispatch of reinforcements yesterday meant the return of Marshal Larsen and his policemen, leaving future operations in the charge of the military alone under Lieutenant King, with Corporal King as second in command.

Among the passengers on the Iwalani last Sunday was Richard Mahart, who with Messrs. Olmstead, Blackstad, Bossy Jr., Cowes and Chas. Turner had been guarding the old Leper pass from the Kalalau valley to Waimea for seven days. In conversation with a STAR reporter Mr. Mahart stated that business called him to Honolulu, and that he came down the leper trail to Camp Dole, and thence to the steamer. He states there was more or less discontent among the soldiers at being ordered about by a man who never wanted to lead them himself; that it was stated in the camp that Larsen, Reynolds and Lieutenant King could not agree on a joint plan of action, each wanting his own way, while the soldiers had lost all confidence in Larsen as a commander.

Questioned further Mr. Mahart said: "After the three soldiers were killed Larsen wanted to give the thing up and have the expedition return home on Saturday, but the soldiers would not hear of it. From my own experience I must say that Larsen acted very queerly. Our party were guarding the pass at the top of the ridge; we could see everything that took place below. We saw the expedition land and saw each succeeding move made for seven days. During all of that time Larsen made no effort to communicate with us, either by signals or otherwise, and it was not until the eighth day—last Saturday—that he sent three men up with a white flag. During that time we had had nothing to eat up there but tinned salmon, corned beef and crackers, with water to drink. I left the party there and came down with Larsen's men. There was one tin of corned beef and a few crackers left for six men when I left the camp, but I suppose Larsen has sent something up since then.

In coming down the leper trail we passed within 600 yards of Koolau's cave, which is situated on the right hand side of the valley about one-third the way up the mountain side. It is a cave about 20 feet long and probably as wide. In front of it is a small ledge on which he has a little white tent, and behind the tent a rock barricade. To reach the cave there is a steep trail of about 30 feet from below over which it is simply impossible for but one man to pass at a time. The cave and trail are almost hidden by the dense foliage of the kukui trees which are very thick there. Koolau has plenty of provisions, for he did nothing else but carry two into the cave during the first two days after the men landed, and the cave has always been kept supplied, so the natives say. His water supply is inside the cave where a stream is trickling down all the time. For ammunition he has about 350 rounds that I know of, 150 of which he obtained from a party in Waimea recently, and 200 from Stolz and the others. He has probably much more. Nowlin and Spencer are extremely mindful of their healths and are not fit for their duties. As soon as Stolz left them they gave their arms and ammunition to a small boy and told him to hide them. When the natives came down they told them they had no arms; the natives then took them down to the beach and guarded them all night, while the boy gave up the arms. This was the night Stolz was killed. When the shots were fired Spencer wanted to see what was the matter but was fired at and ran back to the beach as hard as he could go. Nowlin's story in the papers is an invention from beginning to end. The only part he took in the matter was in helping to bring Stolz's body to the steamer.

OFF FOR THE FRONT.

At a Cabinet session held yesterday morning it was decided that the Attorney-General should go in person to the Kalalau Valley and take with him ten men of Company A as an escort, who were to report to Lieutenant King for duty upon arrival at the camp. After receiving orders to that effect from Colonel Soper, Captain Zeigler called for volunteers from his company, and out of a large number anxious to avenge their dead comrades the following were selected as being the best marksmen: Privates Schussler, Naylor, Landon, Semmel, Thompson, Ferry, Hignett, Cavagnaux, McCubbin and Bahlack. Corporal King was selected to command the detachment, the application of Captain Zeigler to go in person having been refused by the Government, his services being needed at home.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the men marched from the Executive building to the wharf, where they drew up in line and received their final instructions and some good advice from Colonel Soper and Captain Zeigler. They then went on board. In addition to the Attorney-General, David Dayton, agent on leprosy of the Board of Health, and Frank Godfrey, special correspondent for the STAR, were passengers. Before leaving, the soldier boys gave three cheers each for Captain Zeigler, Colonel Soper and President Dole. Owing to a delay in loading freight the vessel did not leave until nearly 6 o'clock.

THE SURGEON'S REPORT.

CAMP DOLE, July 7, 1893.
E. G. HITCHCOCK,
Marshal.

Honolulu, H. I.
Dear Sir: I have the following medical report to tender for events occurring up to date. On July 4th about 2 P. M., in a scouting party following the trail of the leper Koolau, John Anderson, aged about 25 years, Swede, single, a private of Co. A, was fatally wounded. As the body was under the fire of Koolau's stronghold it was not recovered until next morning. Ball entered below right clavicle (collar bone) and took a downward course and passed out of body below scapula (shoulder blade), he probably lived a short time after being wounded as when found he had removed clothes to waist, plugged wound with ferns and was some little distance from where he fell, probably 40 to 50 ft. From the internal hemorrhages which followed, wound was fatal under any circumstances.

In the same charge in the retreat Privates P. Johnson and John Evanson fell down the ridge in the gulch below a distance of about 200 feet, but miraculously escaped serious injuries owing to the thick vines and shrubs covering hill side. Johnson received severe abrasions and contusions of right arm and left leg, Evanson's injuries were slight. Corp. McAuliffe also fell about 50 ft and received a few cuts about scrotal sack.

On the morning of July 5th, in an other attempt to capture Koolau, John B. McCabe, aged 48, Irish-American, single, a member of Company A, was shot and instantly killed. Bullet passed through left side of skull, carrying in its course that portion of the parietal bone and exposing and injuring that portion of the brain matter underlying. Almost simultaneously with the killing of McCabe, Private John Husbeg, Company A, aged 25, Swede, single, fell mortally wounded and died almost instantly. Bullet entered left side of neck, passed obliquely upward and made an exit below right ear. Powder burns, showing close range, and from the distance he was from his comrades, and the course of the bullet, there is little doubt but that he shot himself accidentally.

I assisted the Agent of the Board of Health, Mr. Reynolds, in examining suspects, and am rendering any assistance in my power. Nothing of any serious import as regards the general health of the men to report.

I have the honor to remain, Your obedient servant,
CHAS. B. COOPER, M. D.
Submitted and approved by Commanding Officer,
W. LARSEN.

IN JUDGE FOSTER'S COURT.

A Number of Minor Cases Quickly Disposed Of.

In the District Court this morning the case of Joe Coelho, charged with assault and battery, was put off till tomorrow, and the cases of Mary (w.), Ahuna, Aiau and Aki, for the unlawful possession of opium, went over till Saturday.

Knudson pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $2 and $1 costs. Ah King pleaded guilty to assault and battery on Annie Kaaukaui and was fined $9 and $1 costs. Kanahana, for larceny in the fourth degree in stealing a vest valued at $4.50 from Wing Sang Chan's tailor shop, made no defense, and after hearing the testimony of three cases the Court adjudged him guilty and sentenced him to ten days' hard labor and $1 costs.

Daniel Mendoza, charged with vagrancy in wandering about the streets of Honolulu for the last three months without any visible lawful means of support, was remanded till tomorrow.

Marshal Hitchcock's Condition.

Inquiry at the Marshal's office as to Marshal Hitchcock's condition shows that it is quite serious, so much so that he was delirious during the greater part of yesterday. He was much better this morning, but is unable to leave his bed. Mr. Hitchcock has been so much overworked of late that his system was in a fit condition for the grip to do its worst. The Marshal's many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Episcopal Churches Going to Ruin.

There are four Episcopal churches in the Islands outside of those in Honolulu: one at Kona, one at Lahaina, one at Kohala, and one at Waikulu. In these services are held only at Kona, where Rev. Mr. Davis is stationed. The other churches are closed simply and solely because no one will come out from England to fill the curacies, the peculiarities of the bishop of the diocese having become so widely known there.

KAHUNA MALPRACTICE.

SUSPECTED TO HAVE CAUSED KALI'S DEATH.

Witch-Doctor Treatment at a Dollar a Day On a Superstitious Native Printer.

George Kali L. kai, the well-known printer employed in the Advertiser office, was a man of herculean frame and as stout as a horse, but withal as simple and harmless as a child. Like all natives, from the highest to the lowest, he was a firm believer in kahunaism, in fact his belief almost reached the point of veneration. This is known by many of the employees of the office, who often "joshed" him about his superstition. When he was first taken with symptoms of the grippe, George sent off to Manoa Valley for a kahuna to come and minister to him. The kahuna duly came and prayed awhile, prescribed a certain kind of red taro which grows only at Kalihi, not forgetting to collect a dollar in advance, mixed up some messes composed of li leaves and other herbs, the medicinal virtues of which are known only to kahunas, and went off to spend the dollar for gin and do the rest of his praying at home. This was kept up from day to day, the monotony being varied by such practices as killing a white chicken with red neck feathers and various other heathen sacrifices. The dollar in advance was always exacted, and in reply to inquiries of anxious relatives as to when the kahuna would bring some medicine that would do the patient some good, invariably said "Hoomanani," which, roughly translated, means "Something better by-and-by." On Friday afternoon George's brother became so alarmed at his condition that he called in Dr. McLennan, but the patient was then so badly off that he could do nothing for him. Indeed, it is supposed that the medicine prescribed by the physician was never touched, for so great is the superstition of many of the natives that they will not take the remedies left by haole doctors, even after calling them in. Dr. McLennan was called in at 4 P. M. on Friday and George died at 4 A. M. the following morning. It is the general belief among the haole printers who knew him that his death was wholly the result of kahuna malpractice. The man's relatives have come to the same conclusion, so it is said, and his brother intends to have the kahuna arrested.

The fellow's name cannot be ascertained, as those who know it refused to give it to the reporter, probably under fear of being "kahunaed to death" themselves. The law prescribes that any one practicing medicine for pay without the necessary license shall pay a fine of $100 for each and every offense. In this case there were six or seven offenses, and it certainly seems one which demands an investigation by the proper authorities. Many kahunas are too well posted to accept or demand money at the time they give their services, but of course they receive presents from relatives and patients afterwards. For the information of the authorities, it may be stated that these kahunas all live out of town, mostly in the small valleys about Punchbowl and Tantalus, and that their services can be procured at any time in this city for the sum of one dollar.

The "Herald's" Latest.

Nordhoff's letter of June 6th to the New York Herald denounced the Government for leaving the old carved table upon which the bodies of the Kamehamehas had been laid standing outside the Palace during the removal of the troops to that building. It also recited and denounced the seditious law and accused the Council of stifling free speech. Touching the deportation of the ex-Queen, he said if such a thing should be tried the natives would burn the plantations and would not be opposed by the Chinese and Japanese. The letter concludes with a defense of the monarchy and a statement that "the Queen and the mass of the people, white as well as native, do not want and will not ask for annexation."

Well Known Here.

Among the passengers who arrived on the China were Mr. and Mrs. J. Philip Smith of Santa Cruz, Cal. Mr. Smith is a multi-millionaire who has commercial houses in London, Paris, New York, Chicago and San Francisco. He is one of the few men who have made their millions and who are able to break themselves from the wild desire to enrich themselves still further. He has established a most beautiful summer residence at Santa Cruz, and he has brought from Japan and China several thousand dollars' worth of rare and valuable oriental trees and plants, to be put out on the grounds of Sunshine Villa, his Santa Cruz residence. —Chronicle.

Way Up Tantalus.

H. W. Schmidt has four or five acres of coffee in the fern and koa forest about his charming lodge on the ridge of Tantalus. The plants are now about two feet high, have no blight and are as thrifty as the best Java stock. Mr. Schmidt makes a weekly pilgrimage to his place, where, amid magnificent scenery, cool airs and growing trees, he takes well-earned satisfaction.

A RESIDENT'S VIEWS.

Dr. Lyon's of Honolulu Talks Out For Annexation.

A gentleman who has taken as active an interest in the affairs of the Hawaiian Islands as almost any resident of Honolulu is Dr. A. B. Lyons, a professor in Oahu College, and who also fills the position of Government chemist and analyst. Dr. Lyons arrived on the Australia yesterday and is stopping for a few days at the Occidental.

When seen last evening he said: "I notice that the instability of the Provisional Government is the subject of considerable talk among the anti-annexationists, and the bankruptcy of the Government within a short space of time is being set down as something more than a possibility. I would like to say all such talk is utterly unfounded, and I think I am in a position to know. The financial condition of the Government is as good as could be wished. The statement has been made here in San Francisco that indications are that the people of the Islands will probably refuse to pay their taxes. As they do not fall due until December it is rather early to think about it. I do not think that any of the planters will refuse to pay their taxes, unless it be Spreckels.

It is true that the Government has fortified the Palace, and it is a wise measure for two reasons. In the first place it provides a stronghold in case a dynamite plot materializes, and in the second place it has a moral effect in tending to show that the Provisional Government is in possession of the Palace and proposes to maintain its position.

Rumors are continually afloat to effect that the Queen is to be reinstated at some particular hour, but the hour passes and the Government remains intact. Spreckels is authority for the statement that the planters are all opposed to annexation. As a matter of fact Spreckels is the only planter of any consequence who has those views. He has failed to convert others to his belief." —Chronicle.

Sale of Government Lands.

Chief Clerk Hassinger, acting for the Minister of the Interior, sold at noon to-day three remnants of Government lands situated in Hilo, Hawaii, and containing 79.7, 18.8 and 511 acres respectively, at the upset price, viz. $150, $94, and $500 to the Oronoe Sugar Company.

To Succeed Stolz.

A number duly signed petition asking the Marshal to appoint E. Olmstead to the position rendered vacant by the death of Louis Stolz has been sent from Waimea. It is signed by H. P. Baldwin and all the principal plantation managers and business men on the island of Kauai.

After Many Years.

Captain Dow of the Planter and Captain Watts of the Sharpshooter sailed together 21 years ago on the same ship out of New York harbor. After that voyage they drifted apart and never ran across each other until they met in the streets of Honolulu a few days since.
